The Hoh Rain Forest entrance is only 13 miles south of Forks on Highway 101—about a 15 minute drive. From there, however, it's another 18 miles of very slow driving along the windy Upper Hoh Road to reach the Ranger Station and Visitor Center—at least a 45 minute drive.

Twilighters with only an hour or so to spare can enjoy a quickie Hoh Rain Forest visit by following our directions below for a Taste of the Hoh Rain Forest Trip

- Head south on Highway 101 from the Forks Chamber of Commerce to the Hoh Rain Forest entrance.

🚗 SatNav/GPS Coordinates: 47.82592,-124.263618

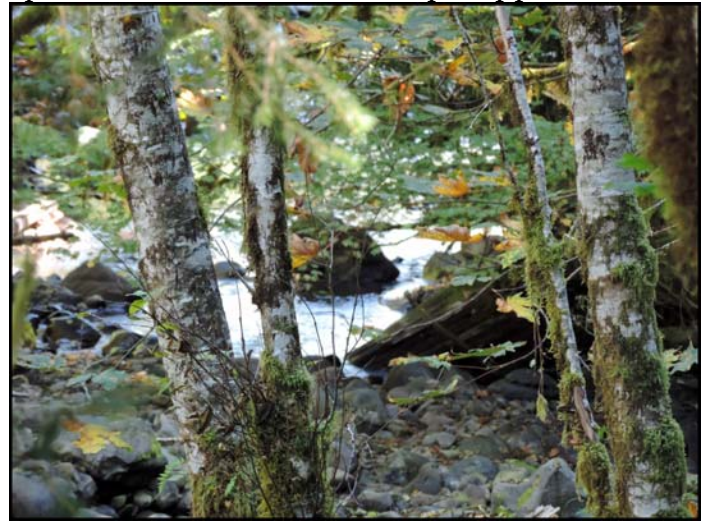

- Turn left and drive east along the Upper Hoh Road until you see the 3 Mile sign. After that, continue down a short and steep switch-back until you see a bridge crossing a creek.

- Just before the bridge, you'll see what looks like a lay-by on the right. It's actually the mouth of a gated driveway that once led to an old homestead house. (The river changed course many years ago, undercut the house, and swept it away!)
- Park in that driveway, get out and wander around for 15 to 20 minutes.

The surrounding forest and nearby riverside offer a plethora of Hoh Rain Forest pic opportunities.

- When you're done, head back to Forks.
The old homestead driveway allows room for you to turn around, and its mouth offers good visibility of oncoming traffic from both directions, so that you can safely pull back onto the road.

Don't forget that you can enjoy the Hoh Rain Forest in style, with marvelous guides, if you book a Big Foot Tour with the TwiFoot company (Site #12).
